

PRODUCTION IN THE MS PRINTING SITES IS RE-STARTING

As of May 4, 2020, MS Printing has resumed production in all of its Italian plants and has reopened our training center in Guanzate (Lario Academy), following the suspension of operations in late March due to the COVID-19 crisis.

This reopening follows a phased, gradual approach, and comes only after we have implemented rigorous safety protocols at these facilities, scrupulously planned down to the smallest details, to ensure maximum safety for each member of our team, which remains the highest priority for us. For example, we have reconfigured operating flows and methods within our facilities, as well as the physical spaces themselves, to ensure appropriate social distances can be maintained between our teams at all times. We have taken measures to rethink and reconfigure the flow of traffic in common areas. We have limited access to production structures and for movement between departments .

All activities that do not require physical presence in factories and offices continue through “smart working” remotely. In our training center, we have taken similar steps, adjusting traffic flows and accesses, and strengthening e-learning tools to support continued online teaching.

Do not hesitate to contact our Sales Team or Technical Assistance Teams for any further information you may need. We remind you that all the other MS Printing offices and operations outside of Italy, including our representative offices and our agents internationally, remain at your disposal, as they have throughout the crisis.
